and language arts books to information for teachers and staff, and materials for the District office.

"Our printers and copiers are real workhorses, they are constantly running," says Vi. "And we bind thousands of books every year for every grade and office with two of InaBind Systems' binding machines."

Vi and co-worker Teresa Rollins count on InaBind's binders and binding system supplies (like spiral bindings) to keep the print shop churning out materials. For 6 years, InaBind has made their work easier and faster.

"It's so much faster to bind books ourselves with the thermal binders. They're so fast that we can do hundreds of books at a time on the two machines," she says. "We know some schools have printers with binding capability within the printer. But those are so slow! While our books are finished, they are still waiting on theirs. This really helps us out, especially now that we're short staffed."

Vi and Teresa also appreciate the fast turn around and great service they get from Bob and Sherri at InaBind, too. "We like Bob very much. His customer services is great, and if something goes wrong with a machine, he picks it up, gives us a replacement and returns ours quickly. That's important considering how much volume we do."
